

Psychologist (m/f)

part-time basis (50 – 70%)

Maybe you're familiar with the situation: you're trying to work out more often, eat less sugar or get to bed earlier, but things aren't really getting off the ground the way they should. Many people do not reach their goals, and it's not because of a lack of determination. It's the many traps and excuses – big and small, tempting and trivial – we face every day. At vitaliberty, the task we have set ourselves is to help support millions of people establish healthier habits.

FiTS is a new adaptive motivation program that has been available for Android and iOS since early 2018. With the help of big data, motivational-psychology methods, and a healthy sense of humor, FiTS makes it easy (or at least easier) for normal people to stick to their good intentions and not get discouraged. Over 150,000 people are already on board. Our goal is to become one of the leading global platforms for personal behavior modification within the next three years. And that's why we need you!

Your tasks include the following:

- Working on the conceptualization, implementation and review of the motivational and behavior-modification aspects of FiTS.
- Selecting and adapting theoretical models as well as generating content such as brief articles.

You are a good match for us if you have:

- Solid knowledge in the field of health or sports psychology.
- Some initial experience with digital products.
- At least two years of relevant professional experience.
- A very good command of German and/or English.
- The desire to work as part of an interdisciplinary team.

What we offer:

- Multi-faceted contributions to developing a motivational app for fitness.
- Space for fresh ideas and tasks with a great deal of potential for learning and development.
- Flexible work hours and flat hierarchies.
- Compensation above the industry average.
